1. The Island of Vis has been converted into a fortress. All vulnerable points are mined and protected by triple rows of steel poles set in cement and strung with electrified barbed wire. Many new bunkers are still being built and the small airfield is in operation. No persons may enter or leave the island without special permission.
2. Two undersea cables run from the Gubovic area of Split to the Island of Brač, one for electric power and one for telephone lines. At Brač the two cables join and continue on to the Island of Vis. However, Vis has an emergency power station for use in case the cable is broken.
3. Every morning a small ship carrying workers and soldiers leaves from Vela Luka, and goes to the Island of Proizd to construct tunnels. The passage between Proizd and Korčula is closed to all traffic. Some artillery and munitions have been transported to Proizd Island.
